Sean Attebury has an expansive knowledge of the New York City housing market, making him an invaluable asset to Compass. As a founding member of one of the nation's top-ranked teams by The Wall Street Journal, Real Trends, Sean has been top-ranked for number of transactions and gross commissions. He has been involved in selling out several new development projects throughout the city, including 241 Fifth, 93 Worth, 15 Renwick, One Murray Park, Arris Lots, The Foundry and also specializes in resale properties. He has successfully closed well over 200 real estate sales including multiple homes in the $10-$25 Million dollar range.

Sean grew up in Northern Virginia and attended George Mason University where he received a Bachelor's Degree in Music. Prior to real estate, Sean had a successful singing career performing and producing on Broadway and around the world. In his spare time, he enjoys competing in triathlons, surfing and paddle boarding competitions. His current side passion is research and involvement in the world of NFTs and crypto currency and how it relates to the world of real estate. Sean currently resides on the Upper West Side.
